

Problem Statement

While there are tons of TV shows to watch, it becomes difficult to pick out which to watch next. Especially after you have seen so many.

Details

After a long crazy day at work or school, everyone just wants to unwind and relax before they go to bed for the night. However, there's always that one time where you finish your favorite show that you've been bingeing, and you just don't know what to watch next. I know I have along with many other people. This becomes a very important issue because unwinding from a very stressful day is something that is very important for everyone's mental health.